On January 13, 2020, the BlackRock Energy & Resources Portfolio (the "Target Fund") was reorganized into the BlackRock All-Cap Energy & Resources Portfolio (the "Acquiring Fund"). Shareholders of the Target Fund received shares of the Acquiring Fund. The reorganization was not subject to approval by shareholders.

An ESG issue worthy of special attention is BlackRock Energy Opportunities Fund's carbon risk exposure. The fund's asset-weighted Carbon Risk Score of 37.2 is classed as high. Investee companies of this portfolio are therefore positioned to fare poorly in the transition to a low-carbon economy.

Based on data as of Dec 31, 2023 BlackRock Energy Opportunities Fund may not appeal to sustainability-conscious investors. This fund has above-average exposure to ESG risk relative to its peers in the Energy Sector Equity category, earning it the second-lowest Morningstar Sustainability Rating of 2 globes.

A fund with an ESG-focused mandate would have a higher probability to drive positive ESG outcomes. An ESG issue worthy of special attention is BlackRock Energy Opportunities Fund's carbon risk exposure. The fund's asset-weighted Carbon Risk Score of 37.2 is classed as high.

The Acquiring Fund was not subject to shareholder approval for its reorganization. Immediately following the reorganization, its name was changed to the BlackRock Energy Opportunities Fund.
