Today, we know that our solar system is just one tiny part of the universe as a whole. Neither Earth nor the Sun are at the center of the universe. However, the heliocentric model accurately describes the solar system. In our modern view of the solar system, the Sun is at the center, with the planets moving in elliptical orbits around the Sun.

The planets orbit the Sun, roughly in the same plane. The Solar System moves through the galaxy with about a 60° angle between the galactic plane and the planetary orbital plane.

Sometimes it takes an animation on Twitter to truly comprehend - or at least begin to comprehend - the amazing diversity of worlds making up our Solar System. Enter planetary astronomer James O'Donoghue from the Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency (JAXA).

Our solar system includes the Sun, eight planets, five officially named dwarf planets, and hundreds of moons, and thousands of asteroids and comets. Our solar system is located in the Milky Way, a barred spiral galaxy with two major arms, and two minor arms. Our Sun is in a small, partial arm of the Milky Way called the Orion Arm, or Orion Spur ...

Our motion in the solar system gif

All our planets have this equal speed, relative to any other viewpoint outside of our solar system disc, therefore the plain of our rotation is at the exact same plain along our disc as our sun is, with our planets not following behind.

The solar system is our common home, in which the Earth, the Sun and other planets are located. They revolve around the center of the system: the Sun. Each planet has its size, color, rotation period around the sun and many other ...
